Laura Craft is a co-founder of OnPoint Analytics and served as its President from 2004 through 2024. She has a Master's of Public Health degree from the University of California at Berkeley and heads up the firm's healthcare practice. For more than twenty years her work has focused on health care costs, insurance, and reimbursement practices. In addition to other health care products and services, Ms. Craft has worked on more than 65 litigations involving prescription drugs, focusing on pricing practices, PBM and other intermediary participation, formularies, cost sharing and government contributions. She works on a daily basis with electronic data systems for prescription drug dispensing and payment, as well as the regulatory and commercial requirements that inform them.

Beyond healthcare, Ms. Craft has been responsible for coordinating nationwide class action litigation, supporting billions of dollars of troubled debt portfolio run off, implementing strategies to assure recovery from failing financial institutions, designing products to facilitate safe and more efficient over-the-counter trading of complex derivatives, and lobbying or providing comments to Congress on multiple questions of regulatory reform. Her experience provides her with a comprehensive perspective on the legal process and the unique role filled by the testifying expert.
